Dear Potential Community Champion,

Each year, over three million children witness domestic abuse in their homes. Their young lives are forever changed by these adverse experiences. Sadly, this puts many of children at risk of becoming abusers or victims, who suffer from mental illness, obesity, poor physical health, or substance abuse. At the Women's Advocacy Center, we are changing the course of these children's lives.

We join where God is already working by empowering and supporting their moms. These moms have made the courageous step to leave an abusive situation, hoping for a better future for themselves and their children. Through our Community Champions, God enables us to help meet these families where they are and give them the tools that move them forward. We do this through our A.I.M. Service Model.

Our A.I.M. Service Model provides women and their children with twenty-four months of wrap-around support for childcare, housing, food, transportation, and much more. What makes our model unique is our comprehensive approach. Not only do we assist women in meeting their basic needs, but we also invest in their overall well-being as we mentor them through one-on-one discipling. You can fund this work in the seven communities of East Shelby County by becoming a Community Champion.

Community Champions participate in giving their talent and time to meet the needs of survivors in the local areas where we serve. They promote our work to their circles of influence and in doing so, they help us raise awareness about the traumatic impact of domestic abuse. Additionally, Champions plan their giving to support our mission. Our mission is to empower and support survivors of domestic abuse. Become a Community Champion and help the Women's Advocacy Center share hope and change lives. I look forward to hearing how you would like to get involved.

With gratitude,
